

Fincent iOS Product Launch

▼ Goal

Finent is an accounting and bookkeeping software that offers a dedicated bookkeeper to address financial needs. It provides a browser application and a mobile app exclusively for the iOS platform. However, the Finent app was only available in beta version on Testflight, which is a pre-release software for testing applications before they are submitted to the iOS App Store.

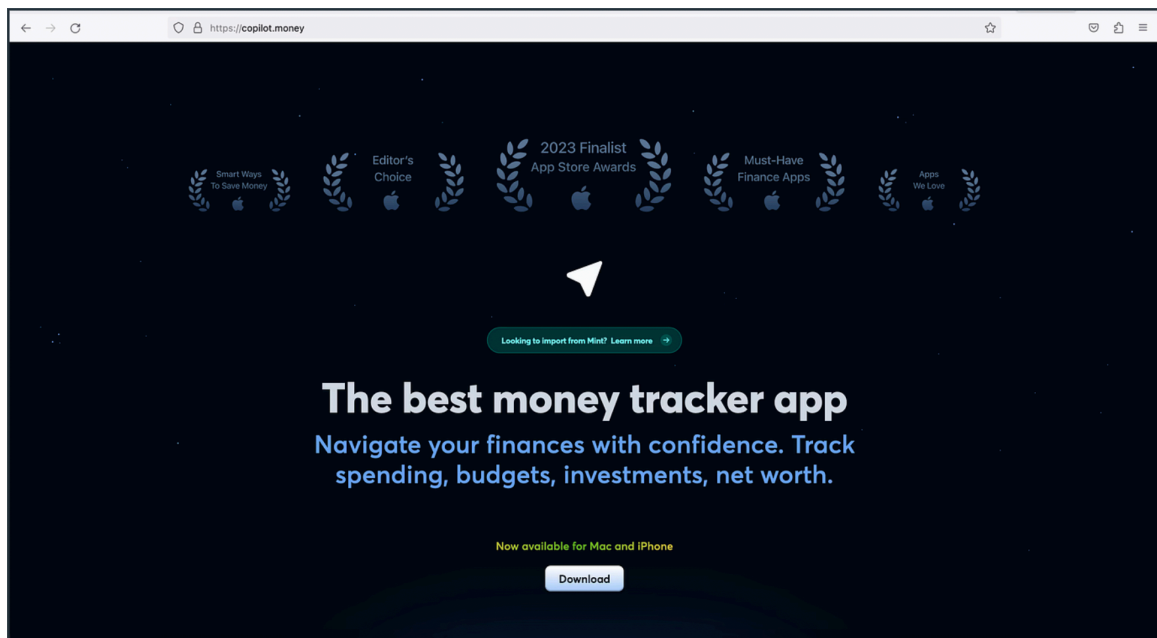

By launching the product on the App Store, we wanted to achieve the below goals:

Primary Goal

To get a competitive edge with other players in the market, and to facilitate stickiness of the product.

▼ Gaining a competitive edge in the market

Pilot, a direct competitor of Fincent, has their iOS app CoPilot has been the top ranked/must have apps by Apple in the Finance category for years now. This is where we wanted to reach with the Fincent app too.

Similarly, Bench, the biggest competitor in the Accounting and Bookkeeping software also has a full fledged iOS app.

▼ Facilitating stickiness of the product

On the Testflight app, Fincnt only had about 30 downloads and 15-17 active users (Active= have opened the app once in 30 days). These 30 downloads were only of folks who had shown an interest in using Fincnt on their phone to their bookkeepers.

Tangible Goal: The aim was for 50% of Fincnt's active users to download the application.

Secondary Goals

Leveraging app store marketing opportunities, and facilitating easier app discovery

▼ Strategy

Focusing on getting active customers of Fincent to download the app.

Plan:

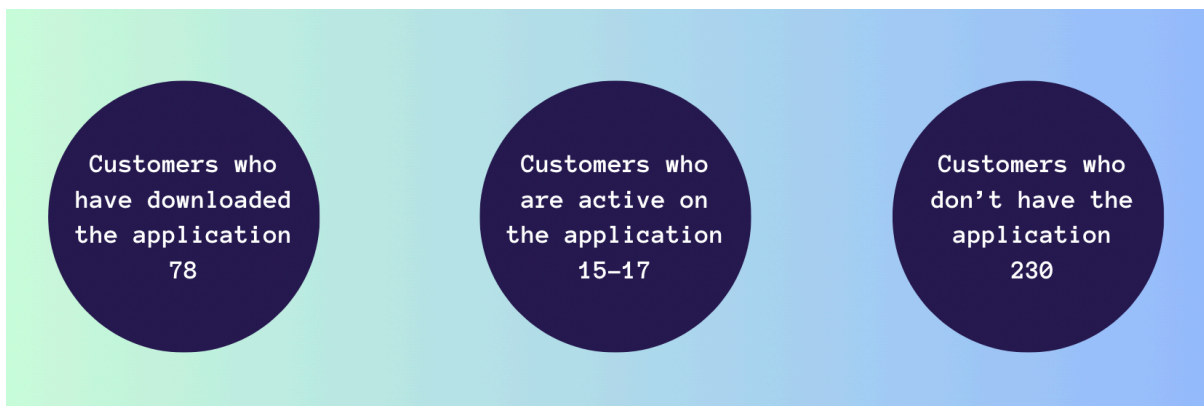

- Identify customers who have downloaded the app, not downloaded the app, and are active on the application
- Create assets for the release on the App Store for different customer segments
- Distribution of created assets to customers of different cohorts via email, in-app notifications, and a brand new landing page
- Getting Sales, Bookkeeping and Customer Success teams to include the Fincent iOS app in their pitches
- Measuring the impact of the distribution via Appstore conversion rates

▼ Customer Segmentation

Our target audience were the active customers of Fincent.

For customers, we had to segregate our active list into the following cohorts. We did this via:

- Checking the Testflight app for download details
- Mixpanel events for active customers on the beta app
- Entire customer list with the help of Customer Success and Marketing Operations Team

For customers who have already downloaded (whether active or not) on the beta application on Testflight, we needed them to uninstall the beta version and download the new version.

For new customers, we just wanted them to download the new application.

We created different email segments for them, mentioned in the Bill of Materials below.

Note: This app was only for Business Owners (BOs) who have an active subscription with Fincent (& their Business owner collaborators)

The app was not for-

- Vendors
- Bookkeepers

- Bookkeeper collaborators
- Free Users
- Archived Users

For prospects, our launch plan included a new pitch for the Fincent app on their prospect calls and adding it to our Group Demo walkthrough.

▼ 1st Draft - Initial Announcement

Options:

- Fincen now has an official app! Make the move today
- Fincen is now on the App Store! Better performance awaits
- We now have an official app! Head to the App Store to download it today
- Download Fincen's official app on the App Store

Why transition?

The move to the App Store is a step forward in providing you with the latest features, improvements, and security updates. This transition allows us to streamline our services and ensure you have the best possible experience while using the Fincen app.

What's in it for you?

- Latest Features: Access features as soon as they're released.
- Enhanced Stability: Enjoy a more stable and reliable app performance.
- Security Updates: Stay protected with the latest security patches.

What's Next?

To make this transition as smooth as possible, we kindly ask you to uninstall the beta version on Testflight, and download the official App Store version by date TBD.

Don't worry; we've outlined simple steps below to guide you through the process.

How to Transition:

1. Open TestFlight on your device.
2. Locate Fincen in the list of available apps.
3. Tap "Uninstall" to remove the app from Testflight.
4. Visit the App Store and search for Fincen.

5. Download and install the official version.

Can't wait to see you on the other side!

Options:

- Fincent Testflight support ending soon! Head to the App Store to download the official app.
- Important! All support for this version ending soon! Download the official Fincent app today!

Why transition?

To ensure we can deliver the best possible experience, we'll be discontinuing support for the Testflight version after date TBD. This means you won't receive updates, security patches, or customer support for the Testflight version moving forward.

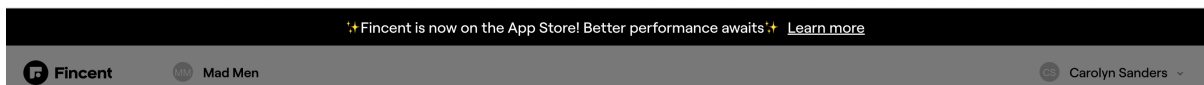

Benefits of the App Store Version:

- Continuous Updates: Stay up-to-date with the latest features and improvements.
- Enhanced Security: Receive timely security patches to keep your data safe.
- Reliable Support: Access prompt customer support for any queries or issues.

Steps to Transition:

1. Open TestFlight on your device.
2. Locate Fincent in the list of available apps.
3. Tap "Uninstall" to remove the app from Testflight.
4. Visit the App Store and search for Fincent.
5. Download and install the official version.

- Revamp content for sales emails, onboarding emails, bookkeeper's welcome email, and Fincents email signatures- This was done with the individual teams and we added signatures to all emails for the iOS app
- Remove all old screenshots from everywhere on the website
- Testflight app in-app announcement banner
- Web app banner announcement

- Social Media post for the iOS app- This has not been released yet and we don't have the asset the social media manager had created because they are not part of Fincents anymore

Getting approvals from required stakeholders- Product Managers+ Marketing Head

Hold a walkthrough with Bookkeeping and Sales/Ops teams once release notes were ready, this happened with the APM and me

Shared resources with the BK trainer, and kept them updated on where the app is at for release so they could share this knowledge with the customers whenever asked

Sales script revamp: The sales team did not have a set sales script they followed. However, after the walkthrough, we requested the sales team to talk more

AFTER LAUNCH

Schedule emails according to planned dates

Measure open rates and clicks and share with associated Product Managers

Distribution of content with the GTM teams

now, and upsell it

▼ Distribution

GTM Teams

- Email to all Sales and Bookkeeping and Customer Success team members with links for the content and email signatures
- Slack channel message in the #sales channel, and a iOS launch update to #General
- Reiterate all the content shared via email and Slack on the walkthrough with the sales team

Customers

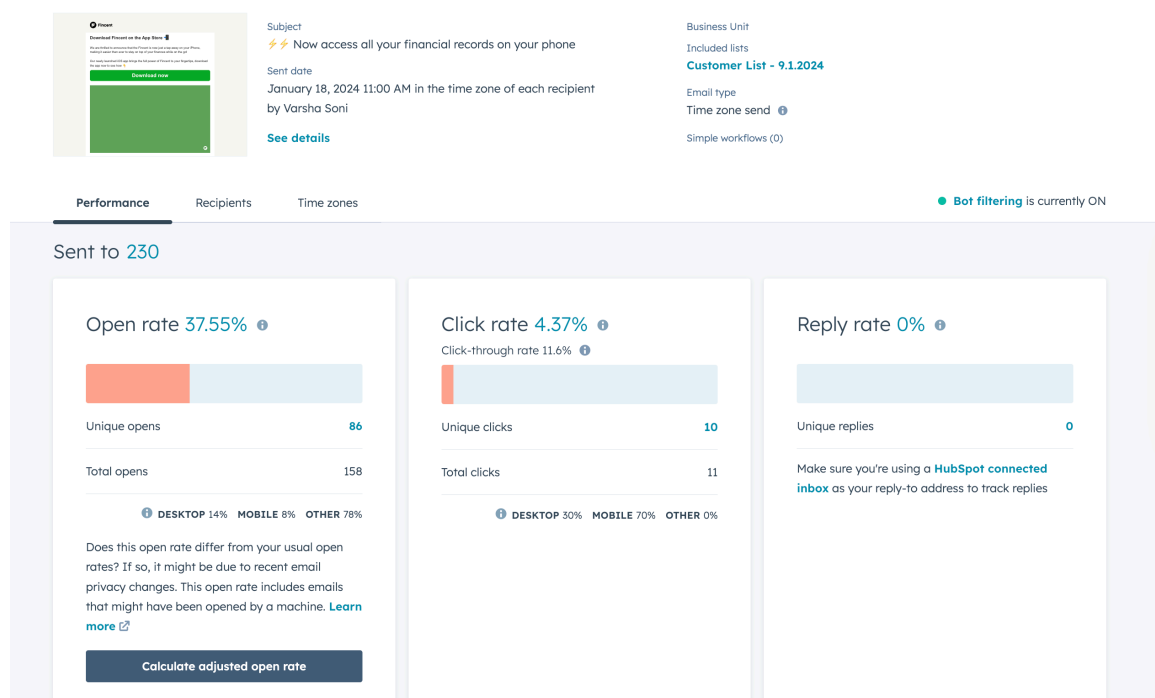

- Email campaigns to customers (cohorts mentioned above, and all emails here)
- In-app banner
- Bookkeeper calls

▼ Results

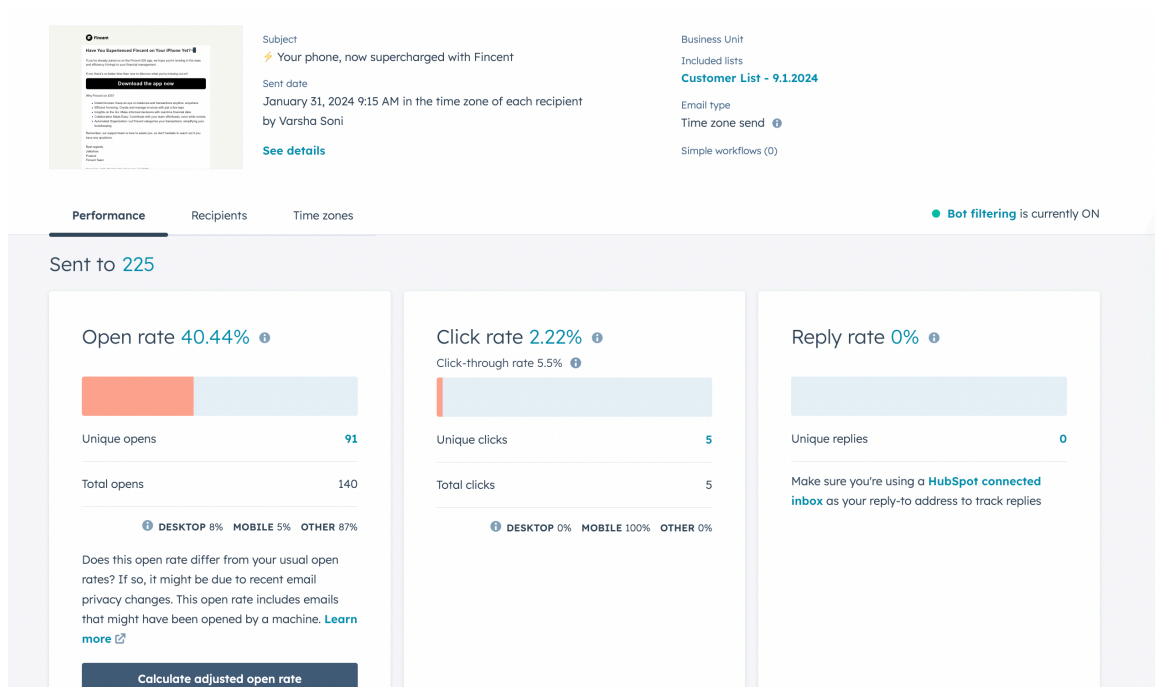

▼ Email Campaign

- We sent the emails to the customers who don't have the application yet through HubSpot. Till now, only 2 emails have been sent. We got a total of 16 clicks from them, which lead directly to the App Store
- For both the emails, our open rate was higher than our average emails. On an average, we get a 22-25% open rate for Customer emails. This can be the result of different subject lines and content variations

▼ Learnings

Time taken: This project was supposed to be finished in 1 month, however, it took 3 full months to just get the application on the store ready and approved to be released.

Unending review cycles: Because of unavailability of folks from the Product team, a lot of review cycles for multiple content pieces kept getting pushed forward. With some review cycles finishing just 2 days before the launch (emails, Landing Page content)

▼ A Small Note

When this project begun, Fincent was in the middle of expanding. 2 weeks before the release of the project, we did not have 2/3rds of the workforce who had worked on this project, and considering the manner in which everyone was let go, the worked stopped the day lay-offs were announced.

A lot of details of this project are missing/unattainable because of folks not replying, and just overall unavailability of information. The main APM was also laid off, and a lot of things which were in the air were never solved for, resulting in very low interest generated for this launch, both from the company and outside.
